The lawyers and law firms on the Environmental Law Association panel have expressed an interest in assisting in environmental problem situations. However, none of the panel members hold themselves to be experts in this or any other area of the law. Membership on the panel is open to all lawyers in Ontario.

By enlisting with the Environmental Law Association, the listed lawyers have demonstrated a willingness to assist in environmental problem situations where legal assistance would not otherwise be forthcoming. This does not, however, obligate panel members to accept every case that presents itself. Further, where a complainant has adequate financial resources, he is expected to pay the panel member for services rendered.
